

ABSTRACT

A method for forming non-separating diffuser on cooling holes, consisting of a two step process, wherein the diffusers are formed by a different process or a separate operation than that used for drilling the metering section of the hole.